Add to the specification at the end thereof the following section.

ABSTRACT

A data, especially golf score data, collection system is provided including: an electronic central data collection device for accumulating, storing and manipulating data; a plurality of data input devices for entering data remotely; and communications devices for communicating between the data input device and the data collection device, whereby data may be entered by a person into any of the data input device and wherein data so entered is transmitted to the data collection device. A method for golf scoring is also provided including the steps of: entering a score remotely into a score input terminal; transmitting the score from the terminal to a central score collection computer for accumulating, storing and manipulating golf scores; and storing the score on the central computer.
